Watch Your Mailbox for the Annual Appeal

It’s that time of year when the Plymouth Historical Museum reaches out to its members for support for the upcoming year. The annual appeal letters are in the mail and we are hoping that our star supporters will come through once again to allow us to continue to offer great exhibits and wonderful programming.

One of the biggest items on our wish list this year is a remodel of the kitchen in the Sanford Burr Meeting Room. The kitchen has served us well for many years. However, the changing requirements for the events that we hold in the Museum require us to reconfigure the kitchen to accommodate two dishwashers and multiple ovens. The remodel will cost about $16,000. If you would like to help with the remodel project, please indicate your donation should be applied to “Kitchen Remodel.”

The reason we need this remodel is because with one dishwasher, it takes us 4-5 days to clean dishes after a tea; with one oven, it is difficult for us to keep up with appetizers at our member previews.

As always, thank you for your ongoing generosity!

Volunteer Spotlight
By Yvette Babish, volunteer coordinator

Christy Haradean

Christy is a dedicated volunteer who gives her time and talents to the Plymouth Historical Museum. Christy grew up in Mt. Clemens, Michigan, then moved to Bloomfield Hills in the middle of her junior year of high school. She participated in track, cheerleading, yearbook, newspaper, theatre, and stage crew.

Christy attended Eastern Michigan University and studied journalism, arts, and radio. She was a studio photographer for a few years and then decided to open her own advertising company. After starting her business, she became the advertising director/manager for Dobbs Furniture, then on to Tyner & Smith Furniture stores. Christy continued her love of being a graphic artist at the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Her love of the arts continued at culinary school; she became a pastry chef and baker for Holiday Market and Ackroyd’s Scotch Bakery and Sausage House, from which she retired in 2016.

Christy volunteers as a guide and actor for the Plymouth Historical Museum. She has portrayed Bessie Dunning, a paper doll, and most recently as Bridget Gallager at “A Plymouth Wake” Murder Mystery.

The Plymouth First United Methodist Church is an important part of her life. Christy participates with the Appalachia Service Project, Quilting Group, Communion Service set up, and general kitchen help.

Additionally, she performs as a drum major, color guard, and honor guard for six Scottish bagpipe bands, volunteers at the St. Andrew’s Scottish Highland Games at Greenmead, and reenacts as a Royal 42nd Highlander from the Revolutionary War time period.

Christy’s hobbies include home improvement, construction, building, sewing, baking, and quilting. Christy’s talents and contributions help make the Plymouth Historical Museum a wonderful place to visit.

Msgr. Hickey Sets Up Gallery For Paintings

The City of Plymouth is going to have an art gallery to add to its cultural charm. One of the most popular collections of oil paintings to be found anywhere in Wayne County, aside from the Detroit Institute of Arts, is being fitted into a permanent display in the little, old white house on the corner of Deer Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

It is the collection gathered by Monsignor Edward Hickey through the years and is in his words, "the end result of handling at least 3500 paintings."

For many years the collection was quartered at the Chancellory on Washington Boulevard in Downtown Detroit and later on Livernois in the St. Mary's of Redford Parish.

However, during the recent riots in Detroit, the paintings were brought to Plymouth for safe keeping and have been here since.

Prior to that, some of the outstanding works have been on display from time to time at special functions in the Meeting House.

WITH MANY of the paintings stored in Plymouth, the idea grew to have them in the city permanently. Through the work of John Kamego, former representative of the Michigan Bell in Plymouth, Harold Guenther and a few others, Monsignor Hickey was persuaded to establish the gallery here.

"It is going to be an interesting undertaking," the Monsignor remarked, as he went about cleaning up the lawn at the old house while a group of workers started washing and painting the inside of the building.

"It will be a lot of hard work to get ready," Monsignor Hickey commented, "but we hope to be settled in here by the first of the month."
On Sunday, November 1, Sid Strong, the city’s first manager, will celebrate an important anniversary.

No, it will not be his birthday, or the anniversary of his coming here to manage the thriving young village in 1920. Each of these anniversaries hold important places in his life, but the one he celebrates on Sunday brings broad smiles of satisfaction.

The big day will mark the completion of 50 years of service with the Boy Scouts and, as he puts it, “These years have brought me many lifelong friends and some of the finest memories of my time.”

Over this half century he has earned or been awarded--most every honor available to a Boy Scout and he revels in all of the activity. Only two weeks ago he attended a conference of high officials to help plan more work.

Should Drinking Age Be Lowered to 18?

The ASK US poll this week produced results that most adults, especially parents, will probably have a hard time believing.

Five of seven Plymouth High students stopped at random after school answered the question with a strong “No.”

The question? “Should the legal drinking age be lowered to 18 in this state?”

In Michigan, as in most states, the age at which young people can drink is 21.

In New York, it’s 18. In several states beer and wine are allowed at 18, but no hard liquor until 21.

Most of the students we talked to seemed to think that high school kids who wanted liquor could get it in spite of the laws.

And they all knew a certain group of kids who do get it, long before even the 18-year milestone.

One 16-year-old junior, Bruce Yakley, said, “It doesn’t matter to me; I don’t drink. But I don’t think the law should be changed. Guys 18 aren’t responsible enough.”

Jackie Dunlap, also 16, disagreed. She thought the age should be lowered because “the kids who drink are going to do it anyway, and if it weren’t illegal, they might be more reasonable.”

Jon Cederberg, a sophomore, thought the present law was just. He said: “I know a lot of guys 18 who drink just because other people do. Kids that age have better stuff to do.”

Several students mentioned the unhappy combination of drinking and driving as an argument against lowering the age limit. They said that students had enough trouble driving without liquor.

Another common argument against 18-year-old drinking was that adults created enough problems.

REIGNS OVER FUND DRIVE — Carol Karshneski, a statuesque blonde secretary employed at the Burroughs Corporation, was selected this week as “Miss Sweet Charity” of the 1967 Plymouth Community Fund campaign to raise a record $98,586 for support of 13 public service agencies. Her first official act will be to preside over the kick-off torchlighting ceremonies at 7:15 p.m., Monday, Oct. 9 in Kellogg Park.

It Hits Checks This Week

The day of reckoning is near—in fact next Friday—when your paycheck will be smaller than it was a week ago.

The reason is that Michigan’s new 2.6 per cent personal income tax is in effect and more than 200,000 firms must withhold an amount to meet your liability.

How much smaller the net pay will be is dependent on income and the number of dependents. Each employer has a tax guide and tables to help him with the figures.

The tax exists on “income received on or after Oct. 1.” Thus if your paycheck is for work of last week or last month, the tax still is withheld.

Any employer who didn’t get a tax guide or withholding tables had better get them and start the paycheck deductions.

City Crews Start Leaf Collections

Kenneth Vogras, superintendent of the Plymouth Public Works Department, announced this week that the city’s annual leaf pickup program will start immediately.

As rain and cold weather have combined to bring about autumn’s first great fall of leaves, the city has readied its plans to put DPW crews to work on the 32 miles of Plymouth streets.

Who Will Be Queen? One of these four seniors will rule over the Plymouth High homecoming activities during the weekend as Homecoming Queen. The selection will be made in a schoolwide vote Friday afternoon and the winner will be kept secret until the coronation ceremonies at halftime of the Plymouth-Allen Park football game. The four senior candidates include: (from left) Peggy Clyde, Judi Utter, Julie Hegerich and Candy Noy.
