Abstract

Over a period of 70 years, Dr. Weldon Petz acquired more than 12,000 Lincoln artifacts, research papers, and other resource materials. This is the largest such collection in Michigan, second largest in the Midwest, and one of the largest and finest private collections of Lincolnia in the country. Among the objects are Lincoln's life mask and casts of his hands, a lock of his hair, photographs, and statuary. The archival collection consists of books, documents, journals, clip files, pamphlets, maps, prints, and posters. In his search for a permanent home for this collection, Dr. Petz chose the Plymouth Historical Museum because it promised to use the collection to create educational programs for students. The dimensions of the Petz Collection demanded the addition of a new wing to the Museum to exhibit it. After the Museum (which receives no governmental funding), purchased this prestigious collection, Margaret Dunning, an exemplary citizen, once again stepped forward and donated a million dollars to build the addition needed to house the collection. She then challenged the community to raise the funds needed to preserve, exhibit, and display the Museum's collection of Lincoln artifacts and the archives that are a part of it. The Abraham Lincoln Collection opened in 2002; the collection is on permanent exhibit in a separate Lincoln Room. The Lincoln archives are available to researchers during the Museum's open hours.

Scope and Content

The Abraham Lincoln Collection record group consists of all materials related to Abraham Lincoln and his life. The collection consists of Petz's book collection, posters, clippings, pamphlets, scholarly journals, and various Lincoln organization bulletins. The collection also holds duplications of some Lincoln speeches. Physical objects from the collection were accessioned for display in the museum.
